

Reduce the risk to your customers and to your organisation with CORGI's specially developed online training in gas safety

Expect more from CORGI

Your customers expect you to take their safety seriously. Gas safety has been a high profile issue in recent years. One serious incident relating to poorly managed gas safety can ruin a hard-earned and longstanding reputation and damage your business.

CORGI's CPD Accredited online gas safety training programme has been developed especially for tour operators.

It provides a cost-effective and convenient way for your staff to increase their knowledge of gas safety issues, raising their awareness and enabling them to be more able to identify potential danger.

The end result is safer customers who recognise the value you place on their safety.

The CORGI brand has over 85% unprompted recognition with the UK consumer, your business can take full advantage of this awareness when you take advantage of our online courses.

We have developed a complete course of nine modules, which can also be purchased separately:

- The combustion process
- CO awareness
- LPG awareness
- Chimney options and ventilation
- Ventilation requirements
- Oil boiler installations
- Commercial laundry
- Commercial kitchens
- Managing on site activities

CORGI's CPD Accredited online gas safety training programme is

- Aimed at all levels of operational staff
- Learn anywhere, anytime, wherever there is internet access
- Each module is interactive, allowing learners to move on to the next stage once they have answered a few short questions correctly
- Learners receive a CORGI CPD-certified certificate upon completion of the course and successful assessment
